Black Start 2019, hosted by the Center for a New Economy (CNE), is the first in a series of multi-annual events designed to provide the platform necessary to reimagine our dreams for Puerto Rico's energy future.

During this full-day event, a dynamic mix of local and international experts will come together in San Juan to inspire us and help us forge a path towards our long-term aspirations.

Malu Blázquez, Executive Director of Relimagina Puerto Rico, will be participating in the "Game Changers: Local Innovators and Policymakers" panel.

Join us and be a part of this important conversation!

The Center for a New Economy (CNE) is an independent, non-partisan think-tank that advocates for the development of a new economy for Puerto Rico. Founded in 1998, CNE produces rigorous public policy research and analysis, and is one of the most credible and influential voices on Puerto Rico's economy. CNE is organized as a 501(c)(3) non-profit entity that does not solicit nor accepts government funding. It relies solely on funding by individuals, private institutions and philanthropic foundations.
